PLACES ON THIS TRIP

- Umiam Lake: Umiam Lake, locally called Barapani, is a man-made reservoir 15 km north of Shillong. Visitors come for kayaking, boating and the sunrise view.
- Laitlum Canyons: Laitlum, which means "End of the Hills", is a viewpoint in the East Khasi Hills about 25 km from Shillong. It looks over deep gorges and green valleys.
- Elephant Falls: Elephant Falls is a three-tier waterfall near Shillong in the East Khasi Hills. Walkways go to all three levels, and the rainy season is the recommended time to visit.
- Nohkalikai Falls: Nohkalikai Falls near Cherrapunji drops 335 to 340 metres (1,100 to 1,115 feet) into a turquoise pool. The monsoon season, June to September, is the recommended time to visit.
- Mawsmai Cave: Mawsmai Cave is a 150-metre limestone cave 6 km from Cherrapunji (Sohra), with stalactites and stalagmites. A one-way path goes through narrow passages and high chambers, and it is suitable for beginners.
- Mawlynnong: Mawlynnong is a village known for its cleanliness. Waste goes into bamboo bins and becomes manure, and smoking and polythene are banned.
- Umngot River, Dawki: The Umngot River at Dawki is in the Jaintia Hills, near the Bangladesh border. Boating on the clear green water is the main activity, and November to February is the recommended time to visit.
- Krang Suri Falls: Krang Suri Falls is in the West Jaintia Hills, about 90 km from Shillong. It has a turquoise plunge pool where visitors can rent life jackets and swim.
- Ward’s Lake and Lady Hydari Park: A garden lake with a wooden bridge in the centre of Shillong, and a Japanese-style park with a small zoo.
- Riwai living root bridge: A bridge grown from the roots of rubber trees over many years. A short walk from Mawlynnong.
- Kamakhya Temple: The Shakti Peetha on Nilachal Hill in Guwahati, the most important temple of Assam.
